Background boxes

There are a number of different styles that apply a background tint or colour behind a paragraph of text. These styles must be applied to a paragraph of text and can be set using the 'Styles' dropdown list or by HTML as a 'class'. If you have more than one paragraph in the text block then you will need to use a soft return (shift return) rather than a hard return. A heading can be applied by using bold.

Audience emphasis box

A grey box behind a paragraph of black text. Use the 'particular audience emphasis' in the dropdown list. The code for this is `Some text`.

Text

Large/Medium/Small

There is a set of paragraph styles that allows you to have larger or smaller text. This style is best used for things like infographics and not for large blocks of text. The styles can be applied using the 'Styles' dropdown list.

Red text

You can create red text by using an HTML tag within a div. The code for this style is `...`. This style should be used to emphasize text and should be used sparingly.

Some red text.
